Strategic IT services

Sigma can also take on a more proactive role – similar to a Chief Technical or Information Officer (CTO/CIO) function.

We can advise on advances in technology that could benefit your business and work with you to develop a clear IT strategy that will bring real value and benefit to the areas you care about.

To do this, we take a three-stage approach; firstly to stabilise the IT environment, secondly to create an IT strategy, and thirdly to implement it.

This involves carrying out total cost of ownership and software audits, checking your information security and conducting a risk assessment, as well as providing ongoing project management and training, and developing your disaster recovery capabilities.

We can also write, manage, enforce and update your IT security policy and procedures. Our clear strategic input has been proven to maximise the returns on IT investment.
